THE TRIAL OF E. S. STOKES. N EXHAUSTIVE EXAMINATION BENRY DE CORLEY.

Scenes which Followed the Shooting of Col. Fisk-A Roving Foreigner's Experience in the Union and Confederate Armies-The Story as Told by Redmond.

The Stokes trial was resumed yesterday morning, the Judge, the prisoner, and the counsel appearing with their usual promptness, but the Court being again delayed by the absence of Awo jurors. The multitude outside of the court room was larger than on any previous day, and every seat inside was filled. The prisoner's mother, father, sister, and brother sat, as on orevious days, near him.

At a quarter to eleven the foreman entered, and after a brief request from the Court that hereafter the jurors and counsel would be prompt, the proceedings were resumed. Henry De Corley being recalled testified :

When I left the Grand Central Hotel I went first to board in Amity street; then for a short time to the Hoffman House, where I was taken sick; there to seement house, where I was taken sick; there to a German boarding of the Hoffman House, where I was taken sick; there to a German boarding of the House of the House

She came to me and then turned up stairs. This was a little more than five minutes before the shooting. I am not positive that I saw her after that. But I have some impression. My recollection is that Mr. Stokes said to me, "There is a man shot; run for the doctor." He was a little excited. I testified before that he was very cool. I was myself very much excited. I have been a solder. I was first in the South a kind of home guard in Arkanas, at a place not very far from Spring-field, Mo. Then we were obliged to go into the Confederate army. I don't remember any names in that home guard and a very a same to spring held. I don't remember the year. I was in that home guard about a year and a haif. Then I joined the shome guard in Missouri. I cannot positively tell any names in that company. We were paid there. We were stationed on the railroad from St. Louis to Springfield. After that opened a little store in a place however, it was in Chicago shown in the company of the work and seems, a station were many to the work as a man behind me in his shirt sleeves. I saw Mr. Hill six to ten feet before me. He spoke to Mr. Stokes.

COL. FISK APTER THE SHOOTING.

I don't know what he said. I think he asked him the same question as I did. I heard no groans when I saw Mr. Fisk. He was not sitting down. He was leaning with his right arm on the bal ster. The first I saw of Pat Hart he came up helping Fisk from behind. I didn't see Redmond then at all. When Miss Hall gave me the pistol Mr. Crockett was about twenty feet off. I called him and gave him the pistol. I don't understand what you mean by the guard of the pistol. I don't nemember whether his pistol had a guard. When I helped Mr. Fisk up I saw no pistol. I don't remember whether No. 20 was locked or not. It was a sleeping room, and they are kept locked. In don't remember whether No. 20 was locked or not. It was a leeping room, and they are kept locked. In the word with Hart about 7. Thowwas an excited crowd. There who was present here. Pat Hart came to me. I was wired in No. 21s about 7. o'clock I was curious and I was ordered out. Hart said something about there being a chance to make some money out of it, and the builet fitting the black pistol but not fitting the other pistol. I had been since my dinner at my station, except when I was sent down by some other ladies. I cau't say that I had seen Stokes there before. I have

Mr. Tremain said that he desired to show by this witness that shortly before this Stokes asked the witness to go with him a single block in a carriage, and that they saw men hanging about the carriage. Excluded.

The boy Redmond was recalled. He testified:

He might have said on the last trial that he would not swear that Stokes was not down two or three steps. To Mr. Fellows—He was taken to the police station about half past 40 clock, and discharged about half past 3. Patrick Hart was not with them. TICKETS FOR THE BLACK CROOK.

TICKETS FOR THE BLACK CROOK.

George W. Bailey testified:
I have known Mr. Stokes at least eight years. I met him on the 6th of January. I had some Dusiness with him about his brother. I was in a Broadway stage, and saw him near Amity streetig ing down. I got out and joined him. I saked him what he was doing there. He said he was looking for a man named Ferris. I then commenced talking to him about what I was interested in. He said he would go down to Niblo's to get tickets for the Black Crook. As we went down he touched his hat to a lady standing at the window of the hotel. He caught me by the cost and asked me to go over. I thought it was only a complimentary invitation, and ficelined. He went across and I walked up Broadway. When I was somewhere about Eighth street I met Borace Stokes. I told him I had left his brother, and we walked back to the hotel. I there learned of the shooting. Went Orden the price station twice. The shooting went of the dependent of the said there were three or four shot, and after the first he jumped through the door, and if I had been there he thought I would too. I told him I thought I would. He said there were three or four shot, and after the first he jumped through the door, and if I had been there he thought I would too. I told him I thought I would the lead its tokes was down five or six steps, and Fisk was on the landing, but it was all so sudden that he didn't know how it happened.

STOKES'S BUSINESS WITH MR. BAILEY.

To Mr. Tremain—I sm a manufacturer of varnishes. I came over in the morning. I had walked up from Fulton street to Twenty-first or Twenty-second street looking for Mr. Lyle Neison, a neighbor of mine. He lives at Green for the morning wanted to meet him on the walked on the capecidal asked Mr. Stokes if he had that no other capecidal asked Mr. Stokes if he had that no other had spoken to me several times. He said he had had a great deal of business lately and had not thought much about it, and saked me what I thought about the matter. I tobu him I thought it was a pretty safe investment, and he said he would look into the matter. I tobu him I thought it was a pretty safe investment, and he said he would look into the matter. I tobu him I thought was pretty safe investment, and he said he would look into the matter. I now large the way I thank, more than one lady at the windows. My impression is that he crossed about opposite the main entrance. I did not take special notice, but I don't think we got above the ladies' entrance. I guess we walked up Broadway seventy-five feet. In coming down in the stage I had no objective point. When I walked up I was looking for my friend and going home. My way home was by the Twenty-third street ferry. I should have gone home had I not met Horace Stokes. It was Mr. O'Brren who first told me of the shooting. That was, I suppose, twenty minutes after I parted with Stokes. I met Horace two or three blocks above the New York Hotel. When I learned of the shooting I went to the police station and stayed there three minutes I returned to the police station. I was sent into a room where there was a policeman an

HOW IT HAPPENED.

Re said Mr. Stokes was coming down and Mr. Fisk was going up, and when the first shot was fired he jumped out of the door. I asked how many shots were fired, and he said three or four. I asked him if Stokes was hart. He said he didn't know. I asked him if Fisk was hurt. He said he believed he was shot in the arm.

Mr. Townsend read the testimony of Mr. Robert F. Stobo. taken at the last trial, in substance as follows.

He saw stokes on the east side of Broadway bewing to some one in the hotel. Saw him enter the hotel, and saw Fisk's carriage grive up and Fisk enter the hotel.

Marshal Cowving Testified:

I reside at 139 East Seventy-eighth street. Last January I was boarding at the Grand Central Hotel. I know Mr. Crockett. Hefts our store in Chambers street shout twenty minutes fo fave, and got to the hotel about five. I went up stairs and looked in the reception room at the head of the stairs. Mr. Crockett came up and said to one of my questions. Don't bother me now. I said, "Fick is shot." I asked, "Who shot him." He said, "Fick is shot." I asked, "Who shot him." I saked how he found it in his power which he said—"nave his piator we found it in his power which he said—"nave his piator we found it in his power before whether I walked and left it in February, 1871. "HE WAS TOO QUICK FOR ME."

John Moore, the former superintendent of coaches at the hotel, testified that Hedmond ran out after the shooting, and ran round to the main entrance. He then went in. It looked to him inside pretty dark. He saw Col. Fisk on the left hand side. He went up to help him, and when he got hold of him he heard Misk say, "He was too quick for me this time." He helped him up to the parior floor. Three or four were helping him up. He then came down and went out and spoke to Col. Fisk's coachman. He saw Redmond later in the evening. Q. What did he say? A.-He said he didn't know anything about it. He said he did not see Thomas Hert. When I saw Col. Fisk the closk on his right side was hanging down full length. When I came out there were people crowding its.

To Mr. Fellows-Col. Fisk was on the platform. No one was with him. I had been employed for a out a vear and a half by Mr. Bellows. He then had only the trand Central Hotel. Since that he has had the Astor House. I was formerly in the bire Department. I sent in my resignation about three and a half years ago. It was I believe informal. I never received a formal dismissal. I die not send in a check to a bank on the Sist of December, 1883, with my endorsement. There were ocharges made against me in connection with that. There was an investigation by the Treasurer, but none by the Board. I did not leave on account of that.

To Mr. Tremain-I was foreman of a hook and ladder company. I never had but one charge preferred against me in my life. That was for fast driving.

AN ALBANY AND SUSQUEHANNA VIEW.

David Groesbeck testified:

John Gibney, now porter at the Astor House formerly carriage driver at the Grand Centre Hotel, testified: On the 6th of January I was standing with John Moor when Fisk's carriage drove no optoble with John Moor On the 6th of January I was standing with John Moore when Fisk's carriage drove up outside our carriages. I saw him go in. Three or four seconds later a boy came out and said Fisk was shot. The boy was Redmond. There was a man at the door stopped us. I went round by the main entrance. When I went in Stokes was standing by the office. I went out and saw Moore talking with Mr. Fisk's coachums.

To Mr. Fellows—I was about fifteen feet from the private door. I heard no shooting. When the boy ran out we both started. I went immediately afterward to the office. When I got in Stokes was in the act of coming to the office with the porters around him. Moore and I were standing together. I heard no pistol shots. Mr. Powers came up to Stokes and asked him what he was doing there. Stokes said he came there to see some one, and mentioned a name.

IN THE HOUSE OF DETENTION. James Brennan testified:

I was in the House of detention from March 25, as a witness against Justus Dun. I became acquainted with Hart and Redmond there. We had a sitting room where we all met. They slept in a little room down stairs. The rest of us slept up stairs. We ate in the kitchen. They had a separate table. I became acquainted with them, and used to play cards with them. I had a conversation with Hart, in which he said he knew nothing about the shooting, and was in another pert of the house. He told me he was in the parior fitting a globe when he beard the shots. He came out and met Stokes, who stopped him and said, "there is a man shot; get a doctor." He paid no attention to him, but went to the head of the stairs and saw Fisk, and then concluded that it is the stairs and saw Fisk, and then concluded that the field me a man had offered him as no one else was completed that and the stairs and offered him a thousand dollars if he would testify as he did, and he had testified as he was told, and that he had the biggest people in the city at his back.

IN THE HOUSE OF HEFUGE. James Brennan testified:

IN THE HOUSE OF REFUGE.

Tr. Mr. Tremain—i was in the House of Refuge for stealing a watch, from November. 1871, until March, 1872. I was taken to the Tombs because I wouldn't sleep in the room they put me in. I didn't make any disturbance, only they wanted to put me in a room with a boy who had plagued the men, to keep him company, and the room was sooid and I wouldn't go. This conversation was about six weeks after I went there. I mentioned this first to a man of the name of Galvin in June. He was a keeper in the Tombs and a friend of mine. He advised me to write it down. I started to do ut, and found I couldn't do it and tore up what I had written. Afterward I told it to Mr. McKeon. I think he wrote it down. written. Atterward told it to Mr. McReon. I think he wrote it down.

To. Mr. Tremain—Mr. McKeon saw Father Durant about me before he spoke to me. Redmond said he was so scared that he didn't know anything about the shooting. They laughed at him there about it. I was twenty when I was sent to the House of Refuge.

To Mr. Beach—I told the Judge I was fitteen.

James Gill testified:

I tormed the acquaintance of the Harts and Redmond in the House of Detention. They had a separate sleeping room. At first they dined with us. Afterward they took their meals in the parior. I heard Hart ask Redmond and the shooling took place. Redmond said he didn't dare tell such a big lie. He had aircady testified before the Coroner's jury and couldn't change it. Hart said: "You ain't going back on me now?" Their Boss had said, "If they only stuck to what they said, they would be taken care of." He said they had the biggest men in the city at their back. I asked Hart if he had anything agrinst Stokes, and he said no. I asked him if he wasn't ashamed of himself to testify so against a man who had done nothing to him. He said: "I have testified to it aiready before the Coroner, and I can't go the said they had the blow of the control of the first person I mentioned this conversation to was Mr. Stokes last July. Kentuckian Shoots Himself on the Eve of

A Kentuckian Sheets Himself on the Eve of his Marriage.

From the Lebanon (Ky.) Standard.

On the 13th inst., Bland Ballard, a young man of 25, son of Thos. Ballard, Esq., a wealthy farmer, living about eight miles from Bardstown, had contracted a matrimonial engagement with Miss Rhodes, a young lady living in the same neighborhood. Tuceday, the 31st inst., had been selected as the date of the nuptials, which were to be celebrated at Holy Cross.

The young man had not said anything to his father concerning his approaching marriage, and he learned that the old gentleman was displeased on account of not having been consulted in the matter. Accordingly, on Friday, the 15th inst., he went to his father and told him what he had heard. His father said it was true that he the tight hard of his not having named the matter to him sooner, especially if he expected a reception or anything of that kind. The young man said that when his brother had married that he had tat told his father any longer before the wedding. The father replied that his other son had told him four weeks beforehand.

Bland then asked his father what he thought of the match, to which the latter replied, jestingly, "I think the girl will get the worst of it." Upon this Bland turned about and, remarking, "I wish I was dead," went away. Soon after this his sister, entering his room, saw him rising from the floor by his trunk, which he had open. He appeared much defected, and repeated to her the wish that he were dead. Shortly after this he left the house, and was seen no more allive.

His absence created no particular uneasiness at first, not being unusual. On Sunday, heecame anxious about him, and search was instituted, in which a number of the neighbors joined.

On Tuesday Messrs, Drury and Milt, Bryan, who were searching a thicket about half a mile from the residence of Mr. Thomas Ballard, had their attention drawn by a dog belonging to the tamily to a particular spot where the dead body of young Ballard appeared to have sat down in a little path thr

What a Single Wave Can Do.

From the Irish Telegraph.

There is a vessel in Queenstown harbor of 1,200 tons, which received from a single sea a surprising amount of damage. This vessel, a Norwegian, was struck by a sea or wave of so tremendous a character in the late gale as to sweep that portion of her cargo which was stowed upon the deck in a moment into the sea; to carry of her cooking apparatus, made of cast iron; to emuty and injure her deckhouse, to smash her bulwarks and stanchions, to wound and bruise three of her men, and reduce four more to a state of weakness and syncope; to break the mate's thigh and wash a seaman overboard, and finally to fill the cabin and damage all the provisions, so that the grew were nearly starving when they came into Queenstown. All these injuries were produced in a moment by a single wave. It not only cleared the decks, but it extinguished hope in the hearts of the crew, who the moment they were struck never expected to see land again.

The messenger started at noon, and the postal mail was continued until the arrival in August. 1673, of a Dutch fleet which recaptured the city (war with England being then raging), and took possession of the government, and exercised its functions for their High Mightinesses of Holiand. The name was changed from New York into New Orange, in compliment to the princely stadtholder, and that of its guardian fort from James into William Hendrick, James, Duke of York, having rendered himself peculiarly objectionable to the worthy Hollanders while previously sojourning among them as a royal refugee. As this second rule of the Dutch was very nearly nominal, the post continued his monthly journeys, although under a different master, until October, 1674, when the province was restored to the English, and the city assumed its title of New York.

Widows and Orphans Suffering, and the Gov-erament Doing Nothing for Them. To the Editor of The Sun.

SIR: The American claimants take leave thus publicly to complain through the columns of your estimable paper of the dereliction of the executive Government, by delaying to enforce the payment of their claims against the Repub-lic of Venezuela, withheld in violation of solemn treaty stipulations.

These international claims were pending on an

from twenty to fifty years without any favorable result; and finally on April 25, 1868, a treaty was result; and finally on April 25, 1868, a treaty was made between the Government of the United States and that of Venezuela, and duly ratified, authorizing a mixed commission to adjudicate all the claims pending in the United States Lagation. Commissioners were appointed by the respective Governments, and an umpire by the Russian Minister in Washington.

The mixed commission being duly organized, 40 claims were submitted to the board for adjudication, amounting to $4.83,273.31. Twenty-five of the claims were wnolly rejected by the board for want of adequate proof, amounting to $3.59,963.01; and 24 of the claims were adjudicated for $1.23,310.30. These claims were made payable by the Government of Venezuela to that of the United States, according to the treaty, by ten annual installment; the first installment was to be paid in six months after the commission had concluded its labors, which was done on Aug. 5, 1863, consequently there were four installments due on Feb. 5, 1872, together with the interest due thereon, and without the least visible signs of any attempt to enforce the payment by the Administration of President Grant. Many of these claims are payable to indigent widows and orphans, whose interests were placed in the hands of their Government, to which they looked for protection and to have justice dealt out to them.

We have a Minister residing at Caracas. The office is a mere sinecure. There are not over ten Americans in all the Republic of Venezuela, and four of them are Consula.

Once there was a large and flourishing trade with Venezuela from New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Baltimore. The arrival of American shall make the depthia, and Baltimore. The arrival of American shall make the manifold depredations and the denial of justice by their tribunals; and after they had been adjudicated by an international court, President Grant wholly neglects to execute the sentence pronounced more than four years ago against a dishonest and thister of War, in his report to Congress, Feb. 30, 1899, gave the made between the Government of the United States and that of Venezuela, and duly ratified.

gress, Feb. 30, 1889, gave the following list of military pensioners living off the public crib: 24 lieutenant-generals, 44 major-generals, 92 brigadier-generals, 77 colonels, 86 majors, 65 captains, 66 lieutenants, 40 sergeants, 10 corporals, 31 privates, and 552 widows, costing $55,990.62 monthly, or $638,87,44 annually.

The vampires are living on the heart's blood of their country, while the widows and orphans of Americans, who have been nurdered and despoiled of their property by these same chieftains are living in abject poverty. Is it not time for a reform in the Government of the United States? There is an American squadron lying idle at San Domingo or St. Thomas, within thirty-six hours' sail of the principal ports of Venezuela, where they should have been despatched years ago, and the installments demanded as they become due, instead of allowing the revenue of that country to go into the hands of revolutionary chieftains, who have no other object in getting up revolutions than the spoils. That Government has changed hands by revolution four times in four years, the inhabitants are mere slaves, living in constant dread, and it is an act of cruelty that so fine a country should be ruined by military despots, and a shame that our Government wholly neglects to enforce the treaty stipulations. Oh that the spirit of Andrew Jackson could arise.

The Voices of the Night. To the Editor of The Sun. SIR: I had to sleep down town on the night of Six: I had to sleep down town on the night of the terrific snow storm. I think I slept about five minutes. Being placed in a room with another person is bad enough, but when that person snores it is intolerable. I had a companion, a clever man, a good-looking man, but he snored. It was not an occasional grant, but a sleady roar from the time his head was fairly on the pillow until he was called for breakfast. They say that there is but one person in the world who can excel him at snoring, and that is McGrath, the racing man; but I am willing to put me man up against him at odds. It is proposed that a snoring match be arranged between them, to take place after they have made their New Year's calls.

A Wiscobia Girl's Suicide.

From the Oshkosh Northwestern.

On last Friday the little village of Eureka was startled by the report that a young girl, the daughter of most respectable parents, had committed suicide by taking strychnine. The particulars of the affair are substantially these:

There was to be a festival at Waukau on the evening of the tragedy, to which the young lady, Miss Mary Atkins, had accepted the escort of a young man named itounds, a cousin of Mr. Horace Rounds, of this city. As Mary had been lil for a few days before the festival, her mother forbade her going out that evening. Disappointed and vexed at this she swallowed a large dose of strychnine, which had been kept in the house to kill rats with. Her sister saw her drink the poison from a cup, but supposed it was water or cold tea. She then sat down and wrote a note, and took up her knitting. For a time she sat knitting and singing, and seemed very contented. Shortly afterward, however, she was taken violently sick, and lived but two hours. A few moments after she was taken ill Rounds called for her, but was informed that she was ill and could not go. Her mother did not know at this time that she had taken poison. After two hours of great agony she died.

The note which she had written was subsequently opened, and found to be a last farewell to her parents and sister.

The young lady was sixteen years of age, and was universally respected by all who knew her.
